Cordoba students study in the quaint Andalusian city highlighted by its beautiful patios, friendly inhabitants, and host families who UCEAP students rave about.

The University of Granada is made up of facultades scattered throughout the historical city. Granada is, in many respects, an ideal size and most destinations of interest in the city are within walking distance of each other. Students typically use the local bus system as an efficient and inexpensive means of transportation from facultad to facultad.

In addition to participating in cultural activities and visiting local landmarks, UCEAP students in the Cordoba Fall, Cordoba Spring, and Granada Year programs venture to Morocco for a four-day cultural exchange offering students a unique opportunity to explore this North African culture and lifestyle and observe its influences in Southern Spain.
