“ Studying psychology in Australia provided a new perspective on this growing field. I love interacting with people from different cultures and finding a sense of understanding between people that identify with different groups. My UCEAP experiences have sparked interests in other related fields of work, such as social work and criminology. ”

« I love the psychology classes at the University of Granada! Class sizes are much smaller, allowing the professors to really get to know you on a personal and academic level. I have stepped out of my comfort zone and been pushed to do so many new things—and all while speaking and understanding Spanish. »

—Allison Meins, UC Santa Barbara, Spain
