Lynette Turnblom
UC Berkeley

Lynette is a senior at UC Berkeley majoring in Classical Art and Archaeology. She is currently doing research for her honors thesis, and will be spending a lot of time looking at, and studying, Roman monumental sculpture. Through her blog, she will talk about her trips to different historical sites throughout the city of Rome and beyond. Her blog will be a unique blend of the modern experience of living in Rome, and the study of the ancient city beneath it. The title of her blog: Ab antiquo ad novum—From the old to the new—exemplifies what she wants to do with her blog—writing about the daily aspects of life in Rome, as well as the academic opportunities available to this specific city.

Michael Drummond
UC Berkeley

Michael Drummond is a third year Art major at UC Berkeley, who focuses on photography and sculpture. Since freshman year, he has worked for the Berkeley newspaper, the Daily Californian, where he served as the Photo Editor for the past year. As a photo journalist, he honed his skill for telling whole vivid stories through pictures and captions. Michael hopes to illustrate various aspects of Rome's rich culture—the art, food and history—through his camera lens.

Connie Chung
UC Irvine

Connie is a fourth year from UC Irvine as a Film and Media Studies major and a Management minor. She is involved in ASUCI as an athletics intern under the Office of Student Services, was on the executive board of her sorority, Kappa Alpha Theta, and cheered on UCI Spirit Squad. She also has an internship in Rome as a film and media intern for the tour guide agency, "The Roman Guy." She hopes to channel her experiences of working and traveling in Rome through video and blogs, focusing greatly on the culture of Italian cuisine.
